Contemporary art is produced by artists who are living during our lifetime. They provide opportunities through their art to represent and reflect on society and the issues that are important to them such as identity, family, community and culture. Here is a painting by artist Kerry James Marshall. Marshall includes references to contemporary Black culture all throughout this painting. For example, you can see a poster referencing a Chris Ofili exhibition at the Tate Britain in London. What other images and references stand out to you from this painting?

WHAT cultural influences would you include in your own work of contemporary art?
